ABSTRACT

A method comprises receiving, into a capacity planning tool, configuration information for at least one streaming media server. The method further comprises receiving, into the capacity planning tool, workload information for a workload of client accesses of streaming media files from a server, and the capacity planning tool evaluating a capacity of the at least one streaming media server for supporting the workload.